DEAD DUCKS AT HOUGHTON LAKE

KILLED BY EATING SHOT

On Friday, April 27, the Department of Conservation, Lansing, received a long-distance call from Houghton Lake. Many dead and dying ducks were reported to be drifting ashore. There had been no shooting on or near the lake.

"Send in about a dozen good sportsmen right away," Director Hogarth instructed his local conservation officer. "And keep fresh consignments coming every few days as long as the trouble lasts."

Then the Director pushed the buzzer for his newly established Game Division and told it to get ready to find out what was happening to the ducks.

The ducks arrived in Lansing late on Saturday, and early Sunday morning were run across country to Ann Arbor. At the laboratories of the University Museum of Zoology, Dr. J. Van Tyne was waiting, and began work at once. "All bluebirds—Scaps," he said.

He first skinned out various specimens to make sure that the birds had not been illegally shot. Then he began opening them, looking for symptoms of parasites and diseases. The livers were found to be much shrunken and the heavy breast muscles were greatly reduced, but there was no evidence of inflammations or numerous parasites.

The stomachs seemed to have plenty of fresh food in them—mostly pieces of green water-weeds, as usual. Lack of food, therefore, could not account for the condition of the birds.

"What's this?" said the specialist, as he began to spread out the contents of a freshly opened gizzard. From among the matted leaf fragments he began to isolate small hard pellets, half a dozen, a dozen, two, three, four dozen—as many as sixty in all. Shots had shot, evidently taken in while feeding.

Dr. Van Tyne's report to the Department says: "The ducks had all been killed by lead poisoning. I found shot in the gizzards and the symptoms check perfectly with those recorded for lead poisoning. As few as six pellets of No. 6 are known to have been fatal, and most of these birds had over fifty shot in them. Nothing of this sort, so far as I know, has ever been reported from Michigan, or in connection with the Scaps."

The question, now, is what can and should be done? Did these ducks pick up the shot in Houghton Lake, or farther south and before they reached northern Michigan? If they got it out of Houghton Lake, what is to prevent more trouble, and worse trouble from year to year as the lead accumulates about the favorite shooting grounds? And if it happens in this duck ground, in how many more is it going on? All that, says the Department's Game Division, is something yet to be worked out, but in June a new staff man will report for duty, he will be a specialist in birds, and his first job will be to investigate waterfowl affairs.

"Wanted—A milliner. Apply by letter to Miss Smith, 10 Blank street."

The children had to make application for the position in writing. One youngster (Marion L.) wrote:

"Dear Miss Smith—I saw you want a milliner. I hate to trim hats. Can't you get somebody else? Please let me know at once."

Miss Schumann—"What little boy can tell me where the home of the swallow is?"

Long silence. Then a hand waved.

Teacher—"Well, Billy (L.) where is it?"

Billy L.—The home of the swallow is in the stomach.

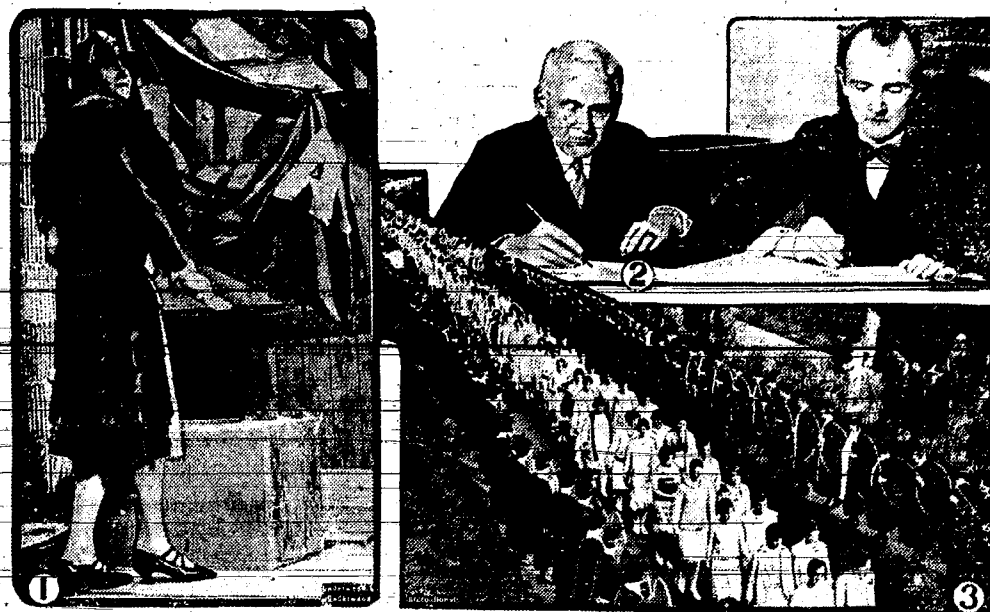

The Grayling High School baseball team will play Roscommon Friday at the local ball park. This contest will be Grayling's second game, and Roscommon is coming with a powerful and sure team which will make a fast and hard played game. The locals have been primed to meet this aggression, who will start—Dick Price, their best hurler. Let's all go and back up the home team.

MEMORIAL DAY, 1928

On fame's eternal camping ground,
Their silent tents are spread;
And glory guards with solemn round,
The bivouac of the dead.

Sixty three years have been added to the slow toll of eternity since the close of the Civil War. The surging ranks have thinned, the once buoyant steps are now but feeble tread. We watch this slowly changing process with eyes that are dimmed with tears, with hearts grown sad in the knowledge that, soon, the last roll call will have sounded and they who marshaled will be keeping watch with their Great Commander on that shore where war is no more, where there is no blue and grey and hatred is forgotten.

On Memorial Sunday, May 27, and again on Decoration Day, May 30, let us recall our solemn obligation as American citizens. Let us join with others in commemorating with loving tribute, the valorous dead and the unwept heroes who returned.

Let us remember that liberty and the blessings it brings will abide with us if we keep green the memory of those who sacrificed so much that this nation might continue, the beacon light to all the world.

While nations talk of ending wars, heroes of wars that have been will be remembered by a people that never can forget.

Memorial day once found a host of veterans, still in their prime, who went forth in solemn parade to pay tribute to comrades who fell on the field of battle in a war of brother on brother.

The hosts of the Civil War aged and grew grey. Then came the tramping feet of other younger veterans, fresh back from the war with Spain, and new graves were decorated, new mounds lavished with the tears of widows and mothers.

They, too, turned grey and the thin ranks of the G. A. R. grew thinner still. Soon there would be few left to join that mourning column which, each year, wended its way to the graves of its soldier dead.

The bugle sounded again. A bugle that was to be heard around the world and that was to call forth the soundest and best of many nations.

The Grand Army of the Republic soon will be no more. Memorial Day goes on and little chance that there will be no graves to decorate, no losses to mourn for the great God Mars forever feeds anew the machine of war and form its spewing maw marches forth a new corps of the dead and some return, to march on Memorial Day and remember the buddies who fell at their sides.

Red Poppies blow in Flanders Field, sterner redder still, by hero blood, and they shall ever blow until a united world declares wars and those who make wars, to be outside the pale of civilization.

Advice to politicians: Never say in May what you may have to take back in October.

YPSI. PROF. PRAISES GRAYLING SCHOOLS

HAS CONFIDENCE IN MR. BOGUE, NEW SUPERINTENDENT

A letter from Paul J. Misner, assistant director of the Department of College Extension of Michigan State Normal college, has some nice things to say of Grayling schools and also endorses Mr. Bogue who is to be the superintendent next year. The latter is a graduate of the Central normal college instead of the Central normal of Mt. Pleasant as formerly stated in the Avalanche. Mr. Misner's letter follows:

Mr. A. Bates, Secretary of Board of Education, Grayling, Michigan.

My dear Mr. Bates: May 17, 1928

I was very pleased to know that Mr. Bogue had been elected Superintendent of Schools at Grayling. I believe implicitly in Mr. Bogue and I am confident that he will administer your school system in an effective manner.

I wish to take this opportunity to express my appreciation of the courtesy and hospitality which I was shown by you and Mr. Smith on the occasion of my recent visit to Grayling. I wish to congratulate you upon the splendid school system which you have. Mr. Smith has the school well organized and I found everything running smoothly in all departments of the system. I would especially commend the excellent teaching which I had the opportunity to observe. Evidently your teachers have been selected with care and their work is above that usually found in schools of the size of Grayling.

If I were to make one suggestion, it would be that you provide better facilities and working conditions for your commercial department. We want you to know that this department, as well as the Normal College, is ready at all times to render any service that you may ask.

With very best wishes and personal regards, I am, Yours very cordially,

Paul J. Misner, Department of College Extension.

TRI-COUNTY SPORTSMAN'S ASSOCIATION MEETS

(By E. M. T. Service)

The Tri-County Sportsman's Club held its annual meeting at Oscoda May 17. The meeting was the usual enthusiastic gathering, attended this year by approximately 400 sportsmen from Bay, Clare, Iosco, Ogemaw, Alcona, Ingham, Alcona, Roscommon and a few other counties.

Leigh J. Young, professor of Forestry and Conservation at the University of Michigan and former director of the State Department of Conservation was on the program, and elicited considerable enthusiasm when he declared that a change in the manner of selecting the conservation commission is desirable. He declared that a commission under the present system with the appointments coming from the governor cannot but be effected in a political way. He insists that the only proper procedure is to make the office elective, so that the members of the commission will be subject to the voters.

Each county has an appointed member, but it is surely men whom the public might delegate. At the present time but two of the seven men are from sections of the state where conservation is a vital issue.

"It is my suggestion that the state be divided into seven districts, and that each of these elects a member to the board. Then allow the board to choose its own director. In this way the director would be responsible to the board and the board to the people of their district. This is the plan followed in naming regents to the university and should work to advantage with reference to a conservation commission as well. There is no use trying to kid our selves that the present system is doing all that can be done."

Another speaker on the program who elicited warm applause was Simon Green, Sky, Chippewa Indian chief. The chief's statement of the manner in which the Indians safeguarded game through what is now observed as the one-buck law, the manner in which they safeguarded the interests, etc., were interesting to the sportsmen.

It wouldn't be too hard to outlaw war. The trouble would be in keeping it outlawed.

Michelson Memorial Church

John Wilfred Greenwood, Minister At 10:30 a. m. the pastor will speak on "Attitudes worthy of our soldier dead." This is a special memorial service and an urgent invitation is extended to soldiers of all wars, to be present. How better can we remember the dead than be present at this service of worship?

At 7:30 p. m. the fourth message in the series "Five Crises in the Life of Christ." Last Sunday night we thought of Jesus temporary popularity with the crowds. They followed him because of what he had to offer them in health and in material gifts. But when he dwelt upon spiritual things, they forsook him.

Now there are but twelve disciples. He says to them wearily: "Will ye also go away?" And in Gethsemane his three close friends go to sleep and fail to watch, and on Calvary they all forsook him and fled. At the evening service, we will take up the Crisis "These Twelve"

The Night Of War Is Over The night of war is over, Its shadows flee away; And golden Peace stands at our gates.

To usher in the day. The guns of war have silenced, A million sons have died, And for the Cause of God and Right, We have ourselves denied.

And can we ever forgetting, The deaths they had to die, O'erlook the cause they championed In answering freedom's cry.

The things they have accomplished, The torch of freedom borne, Must by our hands be held aloft, Nor from our grasp be torn.

For peace has larger duties, Its day brings task anew; The world is crying—"Carry On!" In service big and true.

The temple we are building, Must stand the shock of years; And Freedom's Land must reap in peace.

The seed she sowed, in tears.

By John Wilfred Greenwood.

EXECUTIVE PROCLAMATION Public safety is a foremost American problem. Saving of human life is Government's chief business. The forces of progress and of humanity in the State are seeking to check the prevailing waste of life and resources due to traffic accidents on streets and highways. There is great need of more uniform public understanding and official administration of the traffic laws. Inter-city motor vehicle transportation tends to increase hazards in any locality unless all localities experience generally similar and equally regular safety education and statutory administration. To help effect this, a state-wide traffic safety movement will be conducted during the month of May and June of this year. I sincerely believe that the people in all Michigan will give it their earnest and active support.

The question of safety in the public thoroughfares of the State is not debatable. Assurance of reasonable security to all is a public and private obligation. The State can do no less than give of its strength to such an enterprise. It is our duty to re-assess the supreme character of the law.

Government is not the responsibility of the few, but of the many—and in issuing this I am endeavoring to call into action, for public safety, the man-power and woman-power of the entire commonwealth.

Given under my hand and the seal of the State at the Capitol, in Lansing, this Seventeenth Day of May, in the year of our Lord One Thousand Nine Hundred and Twenty-eight, and of the Commonwealth of Michigan the Ninety-second.

(Seal) FRED W. GREEN, Governor.

U. S. OFFERS EDUCATION FREE Young men graduating from the High Schools in this vicinity are to be given an opportunity to enter the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Maryland. It was announced in a Navy Bulletin from Navy Headquarters, at Detroit, Michigan.

All candidates must enlist prior to July 1, 1928, and on September 1st a preliminary examination is given which qualifies the candidate for the preparatory class. The candidate is then sent to school at either Hampton Roads, Va., or San Diego, California, for an eight months preparatory course. On the third Wednesday of April, 1929, the final examination is taken.

This affords an education to many young men without funds as this course is entirely paid for by the Government. There is no limit to the number of young men who take this examination and many are availing themselves of this opportunity.

Interesting Events In Grayling 23 Years Ago

INTERESTING ITEMS OF NEWS GATHERED FROM THE FILES OF THE AVALANCHE OF 23 YEARS AGO.

Thursday, May 11, 1905

The weather for the past three days has been—but words fail.

M. A. Bates has bought the store building of Dr. Woodworth on Michigan avenue.

N. P. Michelson has leased the Central hotel to O. Milnes, who has taken possession and who will undoubtedly be a successful boniface.

William G. Woodfield came home from West Branch to play with the babies over Sunday. He has sold his business down there and will resume his old job on the railroad.

Edgar Wilkinson of Maple Forest was in town yesterday and claims to have received less than half the money that was paid in for his benefit after his loss by fire.

Mrs. Joe Malarant, nee Maude Robinson, joined her husband last week at Cheboygan, where he has a good position on the railroad, which has induced them to transfer their home to that city. The Avalanche will follow them with best wishes.

Harry Johnson has gone into the dispatcher's office in Bay City, which is a fine promotion and if permanent will soon lead to another. Our only regret is that it will take him and his wife from our village. He is succeeded by the night operator, Louis Uberhurst.

Thursday, May 12, 1905

Mrs. C. D. McCutcheon spent a few days in Gaylord last week, where her father, Mr. Cameron, is seriously ill.

Mr. Kerry was called east Saturday by the sudden death of his father. We were unable to learn the particulars.

H. Joseph is not talking much, but quietly hews his catch and measures speckled trout eighteen inches and over.

Mr. Charles Howland is here again and the cement walk around the court house grounds is being rapidly completed.

The ladies of the Catholic society will give a ten-cent supper Saturday afternoon and evening at the residence of Mrs. C. L. Tromble.

Hon. H. H. Woodruff, of Roscommon, and attorney Geo. Bennett, of West Branch, were the only outside attorneys at this term of court.

Mr. J. Morrison has gone to his home in Cass City for a vacation. His place in the Central drug store is taken by J. S. Winslow of Chesaning for the time.

James Pratt of Frederic met with a serious loss last Sunday. One of his horses was killed and the other severely injured by the cars at the crossing about a mile and a half south of that village.

E. N. Salling was over from Munis for the first of the week on one of his regular business trips and looking over the progress of the new flooring plant. He always finds time for a little social time with his friends.

Judge Sharp and stenographer Austin came up on the noon train, Monday, for the May term of the Circuit Court which was promptly convened.

If you don't feel that you can stand up and say a good word for your town and county at least don't go about running them down. Men differ in their judgment as to what is good or bad or indifferent in things of this kind, and the other fellow may have a better idea of them than you have.

From an item in last week's Gaylord Herald one might well imagine that Bro. McKinley has strange notions in relation to appropriate Christmas gifts.

The idea of March played a very important part in Roman history. Idea of June may be fatal to the political lives of a lot of statesmen in America this year.

A lot of presidential candidates are going to be deflated during the month of June and the same thing will happen to a number of baseball teams which claimed the pennant during the winter season.

COLLEGE FRIENDSHIP

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

THE fraternity was celebrating the fortieth anniversary of its founding and they had come back these three old boys, to take part in the celebration. One was a banker and one was a lawyer and the third was a physician, high up in his specialty.

"I am simply an old-fashioned, grand old fellow of the organization. I would be introduced at the banquet with the old familiar phrase, 'We are very fortunate to have with us this evening' etc., but I really don't count. It was the three men who counted. Past sixty they were, and eighty members, and friends through more than forty years."

There are no friendships, it seems to me, quite like college friendships. Boys come together at a most impressionable time of life. They are away from home probably for the first time, very often they know no one, and possibly they are desperately homesick. There is the community interest in the momentary, a sympathy, a mutual understanding and a mutual helpfulness. It was thus these three old boys met.

They came into the chapter house, gray haired, the slenderness of youth gone, as was the spirit of youth, the active men, boys, I might say, received them with some ceremony as befitting their age. They expected dignity and a certain reserve, but the old men greeted each other as in the old days.

"Hi, Ed."

"Hi, you old buzzard, Ed."

"And here's our little Willie boy."

They sat with their arms around each other, they held old tales of forgotten escapades, of tricks they had played upon each other, of the crazy ways in which they had kept the walls in the door, for none of them had an easy life in college. Each man had succeeded in his own way, but it was not of this that they talked. It was of the old days, of the old friends, of the old times, and as they talked they seemed to grow closer together. They were inseparable, they remembered over the old college grounds, they laughed, they stretched down the old walks, they had done when their successors were with them, forty years before, they said nothing serious; they gave no advice to the young fellows. There was no regretting misused hours, waste in college. They were simply getting all the joy and happiness out of the reunion that it was possible to get.

Their speeches at the banquet were all humorous speeches, only at the last moment there was a little ceremony, and the doctor was presented with a jeweled pin in recognition of some service he had rendered to the chapter, and some very tender words were said.

The judge pinned the emblem on, and there were tears in his eyes, and there were tears in everyone's eyes, and they had their arms about each other, these old men, and then they smiled and wiped the tears out of their eyes.

"Aren't we fools?" they said to each other.

College friendships! There's nothing like them.

AGRICULTURAL NOTES

SPECIAL CROPS GIVE GOOD M. S. C. FARMERS DAY BOOKED YIELD OF HAY

Soybeans and Sudan grass as emergency hay crops where seedlings of legumes have been winter-killed are recommended by the farm crops department at Michigan State College. Soybean hay has about the same major program for the morning, while a big general meeting with the music and a speaker of national repute will be held on the college campus after the noon picnic lunch.

While the plan of the Farmers Day March, to Sun, and Midwest are the varieties that usually are most satisfactory for Michigan conditions, the hay is ready to cut for hay in late August or early September. Under the best weather conditions, the hay can be cured satisfactorily by using the McNaughton system.

Sudan grass makes a good emergency hay crop. When sown the last of May, it will be ready to cut in July. The seed is drilled at the rate of 20 to 25 pounds to the acre. A drill set to sow two pecks of wheat to the acre will sow the required amount of Sudan grass seed.

For hog or sheep pasture, rape is a satisfactory crop. From three to five pounds of seed to the acre is required. If the field is divided so that the stock can be shifted from one part to another, the crop will furnish good forage until late in the fall.

PLOWSAID BORER FIGHT

Wide-bottom plows, requiring more power, bring modern machinery into the war against the corn borer. With the unit shown, standing stalks may be thoroughly covered by plowing. Tractors are common on Michigan farms and a new use has been found for them in fighting the corn borer. If the stalks are cut and gathered first, a better job of control can be done.

Now that the Sinclair trial is over we have the usual crop of fellows who can tell you that they knew all the time he wouldn't be convicted.

THE PRINTING OFFICE

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

THE other boys, when we all went to town on Saturday afternoon as was the general custom, had their various loading places: the barber shop, the office of the grain elevator, the blacksmith shop or the corner by the drug store, where the girls were likely to gather or to pass by to the millinery store next door. I always brought up at the printing office. I first got acquainted with the editor of the local paper when he held father up on the street and persuaded him to subscribe for the Journal. I think it was then that he invited me to come upstairs and see how a newspaper was made.

It was all very new and very interesting to me. There were the cases of type before which the compositor set the type for the next issue of the paper, for everything was done by hand in those days. Even the heavy old press on which the paper was printed was run by hand. I tried to pull the lever which made the impression, but it was far too stiff to be moved by my slender arms. There were the imposing galleys I never could understand why they used that word upon which the type was carefully placed when set up and great piles of paper, and all sorts of curious things.

I got a thrill when one of the "types" let me hold a stick in my hand and showed me where all the various letters and punctuation marks were. I could not see at first why they were not arranged in regular order like a normal alphabet. It was a little confusing at first to read everything upside down, but I soon got used to it. I have had no greater pride in any personal accomplishment than the moment when I stood by the printer and saw him setting up the paragraphs, which I myself had written.

I hadn't been in college a week before I wandered around to the old office where the college bi-monthly was set up and printed. I was office devil for a year. Most of my college friends were made in the old office. My knowledge of typesetting helped me to curb a living for four years. I taught me accuracy in punctuation, discrimination in the use of words; I emphasized the importance of correct spelling. I gave me an ambition I determined to be a great editor and to spend my life in and about a printing office. It was, of course, a frustrated ambition, but I still love to talk about a printing office. No one has a more definite philosophy of life than the printer. He could settle any social, political, or religious difficulty given him a chance. I love the smell of ink and the sound of the typesetting machines as they click on the lines, and the noise of the great presses as they turn out the freshly printed and folded newspapers. There is a great education for the loafer in a printing office. I learned a tremendous amount there.

Mrs. James A. McManis, wife of the Irish member of the Bremen crew of the transatlantic light, started for New York soon after learning that the phone had landed on Greenly Island.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Senate May Keep Tax Cut Down to 200 Millions—Week in Politics.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY MELLON presented to the senate finance committee his new program of tax reduction, and the Republican members of the committee, together with Senator King of Utah, Democrat, gave the plan their tentative approval in its general features. The result will be that the bill presented to the senate will provide for a tax cut amounting to about $200,000,000, instead of the $300,000,000 reduction called for in the house measure.

Mr. Mellon asserted that the prospective $252,000,000 surplus for the fiscal year 1935 already has been shaved to $212,000,000 and that if congress appropriates $30,000,000 for flood protection during that year the surplus will be further reduced to $182,000,000. On the basis of these figures he sealed down the administration tax cut maximum, which he placed at $225,000,000, less $25,000,000 without reduction for food control and to less than $150,000,000 if the expected appropriation for this purpose is made.

By a vote of 13-6 the committee formally approved a reduction in the tax on corporation earnings from 13 1/2 to 12 per cent, meaning a reduction in revenue of $123,000,000; and it also approved the repeal of the estate tax which will cut the revenue $7,000,000 more. In appropriating the remaining $100,000,000 it was necessary to decide whether to approve the scaling down of intermediate surtax rates proposed by Secretary Mellon, involving a loss in revenue of $30,000,000, or whether to use this amount in the reduction or repeal of the automobile and other miscellaneous taxes which Secretary Mellon believes should be retained. It was expected the committee would approve an increase in the exemption for small corporations, as in the house bill.

CHARLES E. HUGHES having declined the job, the Republican national committee selected Senator Simon D. Fess of Ohio as temporary chairman and "keynote" of the Kansas City convention. There was opposition to this choice, as Senator Fess is able and eloquent and has at all times been a loyal supporter of the policies of President Coolidge and of the Republican party. His name remained on the Ohio ballot as one of the Willis candidates for delegate at large, but he announced that if he were elected he would have no objection to being chosen for the national convention. As indicated under the requirements of the Ohio law, is Senator Curtis of Kansas. But it is known that he really favors Hoover if the drafting of Coolidge cannot be put through. The other Willis candidates for delegate also decided that they would go to the convention with out first choice. Their second choice pledges, which are to stand, are 34 for Lowden, 8 for Curtis and 9 for Charles Fisher of Wilmington, Ohio. If the name of Charles E. Hughes is placed before the convention he will have the support of those delegates. All of which is contingent on their election in the primaries.

New York Republicans elected in the primary election of June 11, 1934, Hooverites claim at least 47. Among those chosen was Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, war leader, who defeated the avowed dry. In the Wisconsin Republican primary the La Follette forces received the first serious setback they have had in years. According to incomplete returns the total delegation at Kansas City will be made up of 12 La Follette men, pledged to Senator Norris, and 14 anti-La Follette men, most of whom are unpledged. Hoover was the only announced candidate in the Michigan primary and will have that state's 33 votes.

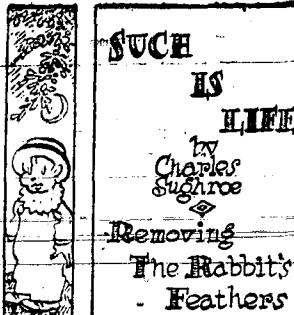

After winning 30 Michigan delegates without contest, Al Smith next day captured 124 more votes in three states. These included 60 from New York, 12 from Maine and 26 from Wisconsin. In the Badger state the Walsh candidates were sniped under by the state of delegates sponsored by National Committeeman J. M. Callahan and pledged to Smith. The voters, however, in marking their Presidential preference ballots gave Senator Reed of Wisconsin a three-one majority over the governor of New York. Smith's name had to be written in the ballot.

Reverting to the Republican situation, attention should be called to the action of the corn belt committee in Des Moines. Claiming to represent more than a million organized farmers, the committee adopted a resolution opposing the election of Hoover should he be nominated by the Republican convention. In that event the committee plans to throw its voting strength to the Democratic nominee.

GOVERNOR GREEN of Michigan appointed Arthur H. Vanderberg to fill out the unexpired term of the late United States Senator W. N. Ferris. The appointment is good only until next December, but Mr. Vanderberg announced that he will be a candidate for election to the senate in the fall. The new senator is editor of the Grand Rapids Herald and is a student and writer on American history and the Constitution. He is only forty-four years old.

Cyrus Locher, a Democrat, was named to fill out the term of the late Senator Willis of Ohio by Governor Donahay. Mr. Locher is the state director of commerce and resides in Cleveland.

ALBERT B. FALL, in his testimony taken at El Paso for use in the trial of Harry Sinclair, said three Republican leaders—a former cabinet member now in Europe, a senator and a former senator—advised him to write the famous McLean letter to the senate Teapot Dome committee in 1922 in an effort to conceal a loan of $100,000 from Edward Doheny, oil magnate.

In Washington, D. C., it was stated the man named by Fall were Will Hays, Senator Reed Smoot of Utah and ex-Senator Leonard of Wisconsin. Both Smoot and Leonard branded Fall's story as utterly false. Leonard said Fall told him he got the money from McLean and he then had every reason to believe Fall was telling the truth.

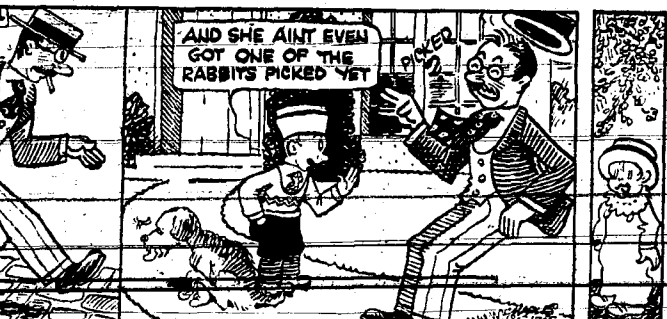

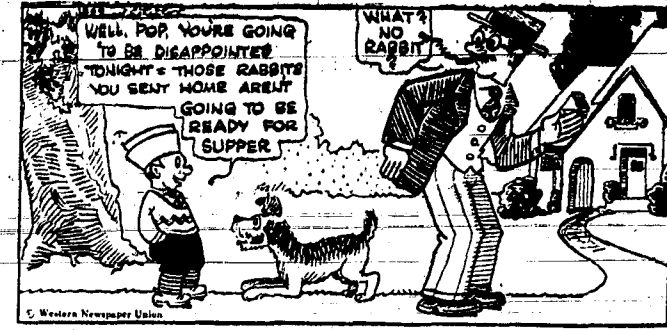

GENIAL, optimistic, picturesque old chairman of the board of directors of the New York Central railroad succumbed to pneumonia at his residence in the metropolis only a few days after his return from a trip to Florida. Born in Peck-Hill in 1854, Mr. Dupuy was educated at Yale and then was admitted to the bar. He was active in politics all his life from his twenty-first year and attended every Republican national convention as a delegate since 1888 with the exception of that of 1924. At the 1888 convention he received 60 votes for the Presidential nomination. He served two terms as United States senator, from 1880 to 1901. In 1880 he entered the service of the Knickerbocker railroad system and remained with it until his death. For 13 years he was president of the New York Central. He was especially well known for his public addresses and his after-dinner speeches. He at last triumphed in his long struggle to win the presidency.

GREAT BRITAIN'S plan to keep up the price of rubber by restricting the exports known as the Stevenson plan, which followed Prime Minister Baldwin's announcement to the house of commons that the government had decided that all restrictions on the export of rubber from Malaya and Ceylon would be removed beginning November 1, 1934. According to the Stevenson plan the exportable percentage of rubber was determined at the beginning of each quarter by the average price during the preceding quarter. It was attacked especially by American users as an attempt to bring about a monopoly of rubber, and was successful for a time. But Dutch competition in Sumatra, American conservation, German synthetic rubber and new planting projects doomed the scheme to failure. During recent months the price of rubber has steadily declined, and experts predict that it will stay low, despite the abandonment of the British plan, until the inefficient producers are driven out.

THE house committee on flood control accepted the senate's bill on that matter and all looked rosy until Tuesday, when President Coolidge advised the house leaders that he was not satisfied with the compromise effected and feared the pending measure would involve huge expenditures in excess of the $325,000,000 authorized. He still wished the appointment of an economic commission to study the question of local contributions, and had a number of other amendments. The Republican house leaders therefore decided the bill should not be called up before the latter part of this week. The house committee also fears an adequate flood protection program will cost more than is provided for in the senate bill. In its report the committee contends that the cost of flood control works and rights-of-way under the Javlin plan would be $205,000,000, which is exclusive of $111,000,000 for improving navigation. The Mississippi river commission's plan, which under the terms of the Jones bill may be adopted if desired in cases where it conflicts with the Javlin plan, would cost $625,000,000 for flood control works and rights-of-way. Both of these apply only to the lower Mississippi river.

MINISTER MACMURRAY went from Peking today to Shanghai to settle with the Chinese Nationalist government the row over the Nanking outrages of March, 1927, and settle it to the satisfaction of Washington, without yielding to the arrogance of the Chinese or sacrificing the prestige of the United States. The British press in Hongkong was astonished by Mr. MacMurray's success where the British minister had failed, and jeered at the reluctance as one of expediency due to the approaching elections in America.

PREMIER MUSSOLINI and the pope seem both to be determined not to continue the controversy over the education of the youth of Italy. The Vatican organ in a conciliatory editorial declared the Holy See had no intention of projecting itself into the affairs of the Italian state, and the duke sternly notified the Italian press that this must be considered as absolutely closing the incident. It is understood that though there is to be no rescinding of the decree against Catholic boy scout organizations, a flexible formula for procedure will be found whereby the decree is avoided in most places where it is desired.

SMYRNA, the unfortunate Asia Minor seaport, was shattered by a series of earthquake shocks extending through several days and affecting also a number of nearby villages. The fatalities were numerous and a great many buildings were destroyed, among them being some of the fine structures erected since the great conflagration of 1922. The first tremors were preceded by a terrifying display of celestial electricity.

FRANCE'S latest note to America concerning the Washington proposal for an unqualified multilateral treaty to end war accepts the plan with reservations, and leads Secretary of State Kellogg to believe a real step has been taken toward abolishing armed conflict. It is understood the next move will be to extend the negotiations to include England, Germany, Italy and Japan. Briand has abandoned his contention that the term "aggressive war" be substituted for "all war," but he makes it perfectly clear that the French government cannot allow the proposed treaty to interfere with French obligations under the league. The foreign minister also declares that the inclusion of all powers in the league is absolutely necessary in the interests of world peace.

PEACE negotiations between Poland and Lithuania, held in Koenigsberg, Germany, fell through mainly because Premier Wladimir would not yield on the question of Vilna. He knew if he did, his government would be overthrown. For the Lithuanians insist the city of Poland must be restored to them. The conference may be resumed later, for three commissions were named to study questions of economics, security and nationalities.

DIPPING INTO SCIENCE

The Dog an Old Animal

The dog was a friend to man long before historical records were made. He serves the Eskimo, the cannibal, the Sudan and the white man the world over. He is descended from wolves and jackals, and it is believed that he was left entirely to himself, he would in time revert to the wild habits of his ancestors.

BUDGET SYSTEM PROVES GREAT AID IN GETTING AHEAD

(By S. W. Straus, President American Society for Thrift.)

Every business concern keeps a strict account of every penny received and spent, and any firm or corporation which did not do so would soon go into bankruptcy.

In principle, the same rule should apply to individuals. Lack of system while it may not lead to failure or ruin, is a great detriment to our progress.

Carelessness in small things leads to carelessness in larger affairs and likewise the careful handling of small amounts of money fits one for the greater and larger responsibilities of life.

One of our most successful business men has said: "Early in life, when a poor boy, I formed the habit of jotting down a record of every penny I spent. This taught me the value of system and frugality. I soon found myself able to save a little money. As I grew I developed habits of general thrift from this simple beginning, and with a small amount of capital thus available when I reached the age of maturity, I was able to take advantage of opportunities that led to subsequent success."

A few pennies or a few dollars wasted here and there do not seem to amount to much at the time they are spent, but when you see the record of these extravagances in cold figures they assume their true proportions and significance.

If you are endeavoring to get ahead in the world you will find that by the adoption of a budget system your success in thrift will be made doubly easy and you will soon be surprised at the difference—these systematic practices make in the amount of your savings.

They are now using rubber for bumpers on automobiles in Germany. This ought to make auto driving very amusing, as you can watch how far the pedestrian bounces back when you hit him.

It's easy for me to do a full day's work and stay up late nights since taking Vinol. My weight has increased 5 pounds." Earl Dunlap.

Vinol is a delicious compound of cod liver peptone, iron, etc. Nervous, easily tired, anemic people are surprised how Vinol gives new pep, sound sleep and a big appetite. The very first bottle often adds several pounds weight to thin children or adults. Tastes delicious.

We cannot help but feel pleased at the news from the general conference of churches at Kansas City, saying that a committee of the Methodist Episcopal churches have appointed a committee to attend a Presbyterian general assembly being held at Tulsa, Okla., this month, preparing for the immediate action toward the unification of these two great churches. We hope this will mean eventually the United churches of America instead of so many isms; one Protestant denomination; fewer churches and better ministrations.
